

H.O. Foundation: Activity Report 2017

5 May 2018

Activities in 2017:

The Harry Otten Prize was awarded for the third time in 2017. The winner was Lee Chapman. His idea is to use the “Internet of Things” with low-cost sensors to monitor the weather on a very dense network to improve short-range forecasting.

For this prize round, the Foundation received a total of 12 applications from six European countries, Armenia and the USA. Five applications were selected for the second round. From these remaining five proposals, three were selected for the final round in Dublin. After the oral presentation of the proposals the jury decided that ‘High-Resolution Monitoring of Weather Impacts on Infrastructure Networks’ (author: Lee Chapman) was the best idea. The other proposals were ‘Making use of errors in consumer weather data to derive advanced weather parameters’ (author: Tom de Ruijter) and ‘CrowDat@ssimilation: Assimilation of crowdsourced meteorological data in NWP models to improve small-scale weather forecasts’ (authors: Gert-Jan Steeneveld and Sytse Koopmans). During the award ceremonies at the Annual Meeting of the European Meteorological Society (EMS), held in Dublin, Ireland, 5 September 2017, Lee Chapman was presented as winner of the Harry Otten Prize 2017.

The following formal meetings were held:

Board Meetings:	4 and 5 September 2017 in Dublin
