

The

Harry Otten Prize

for Innovation in Meteorology

25000 Euros

for the best innovative idea in meteorology

The Harry Otten Prize is a prize of 25000 Euros that is awarded every two years for the best innovative idea in Meteorology.

The prize encourages individuals and small groups (maximum of 3 individuals) to propose new ideas of how meteorology can, in a practical way, move society forward.

The next prize will be awarded during the meeting of the European Meteorological Society (EMS) in Ljubljana (Slovenia) during the week 8-12 September 2025.

Ideas for the prize may be submitted from 15 September 2024 until the closing date of 10 March 2025.

Harry Otten was the founder of MeteoGroup, a successful company providing meteorological services. He expressed his gratitude to the meteorological community by creating an endowment that supports the prize.

The endowment is governed by an independent board. The members of the board also form the jury that awards the prize.

For additional information please visit www.harry-otten-prize.org